

Reby Kern (they/them) currently serves at the Director of School Outreach at Time Out Youth Center in Charlotte, NC.

Reby works directly with students, school personnel, administrators and district-level administrators to provide youth leadership programs and educate school systems and educators on best practices and policies for more inclusive schools for LGBTQ youth across the region.

Reby also teaches yoga at Yoga One in Charlotte and leads yoga for queer youth at Time Out Youth Center. Reby works with Amplify and Activate to promote racial justice, equity and accountability in yoga studios across Charlotte.

Reby previously served three years as Media, Communications and Programs Manager at Campus Pride, a Charlotte-based, national organization creating safer, more LGBTQ-friendly college campuses. Over the past year Reby participated in the Community Builder's Initiative Leaders Under 40 Program. This year-long program developed young leaders to engage deeper in the Charlotte community to identify root causes and conditions of systemic barriers and create pathways to new solutions and amends to these barriers.

Reby also spends countless hours engaging with the recovery community in Charlotte serving individuals who have been affected by substance and alcohol abuse. If you look closely around Charlotte, you may even find Reby in a mural on the side of AerialCLT in Uptown Charlotte.
